As a MERN Stack Developer, I have designed and developed dynamic and responsive UI components using React.js and Next.js, ensuring a seamless user experience across devices. I have implemented state management using Redux, Context API, and React Query, improving performance and scalability. To enhance UI performance, I have utilized lazy loading, memoization, and efficient rendering techniques. I have also ensured cross-browser compatibility and responsive design, delivering a consistent experience. On the backend, I have developed RESTful APIs using Node.js and Express.js, ensuring efficient communication between the frontend and backend. I have implemented authentication and authorization using JWT, OAuth, and SSH key pairs, enhancing security. Session management was handled using Redis and other caching mechanisms, optimizing application performance. For database management, I have worked with MongoDB and PostgreSQL, implementing caching, indexing, and optimizations for faster data retrieval. I have also handled real-time data using WebSockets (e.g., Socket.IO) to support live updates and notifications. My focus has been on writing clean, scalable, and maintainable code, ensuring high performance and security in all aspects of development.
