A Toolpusher is the senior drilling supervisor on an oil rig, responsible for managing all drilling operations, personnel, and equipment to ensure safe, efficient, and cost-effective work. Their primary duty is to oversee the drilling crew and ensure operations are carried out according to plan and industry standards. This includes monitoring daily drilling activities, maintaining equipment and rig machinery, and ensuring proper implementation of safety procedures. Toolpushers act as a bridge between the rig crew and the company or client representatives. They coordinate with engineers and company men to achieve drilling targets, manage logistics such as supply and transportation, and ensure compliance with environmental and regulatory standards. Personnel management is a key part of their role—they supervise crew schedules, resolve conflicts, train new employees, and maintain high morale. Toolpushers are also responsible for recording accurate daily reports, tracking progress, and updating the head office. In emergency situations, the Toolpusher is the go-to leader for making quick decisions, initiating well control procedures, and ensuring the safety of the entire rig. Overall, a Toolpusher plays a critical leadership role in maintaining operational excellence, safety, and productivity on the rig. Their experience and decision-making are crucial to the success of drilling operations.

- Drilling Operations: Proficient in managing and supervising drilling activities, including well control, hole cleaning, •
- Problem-Solving: Adept at troubleshooting operational issues and finding effective solutions to complex challenges on the rig.
