Tool Pusher is the senior-most drilling supervisor on a rig, responsible for managing all aspects of drilling operations. Their primary role is to ensure that drilling is conducted safely, efficiently, and in compliance with company procedures and regulatory standards. They supervise and coordinate the rig crew, including drillers, floorhands, and derrickmen, and are responsible for training, performance evaluation, and maintaining high safety standards. Tool Pushers oversee equipment maintenance, ensuring all machinery is in proper working condition to avoid downtime. They monitor daily activities, plan operations, and provide regular reports to the drilling superintendent or company representative. Communication and leadership are key aspects of the role, as Tool Pushers must coordinate between on-site crews and off-site management. In emergency situations, the Tool Pusher leads the response and ensures that all safety and well control procedures are followed. They also play a vital role in cost control by minimizing non-productive time and ensuring efficient use of materials and labor. Overall, a Tool Pusher is crucial in maintaining productivity, safety, and crew morale on the rig, making them an essential leader in drilling operations. Their expertise and decision-making directly impact the success and safety of the drilling project

They require advanced technical knowledge of drilling operations, well control, and rig equipment, as well as strong problem-solving skills to respond effectively during equipment failures or emergencies.
