Additional Information

Roles and Responsibilities	Additional Skills/Certification
Key responsibilities include loading and unloading equipment and supplies, assembling and dismantling machinery, cleaning decks and rig areas, and assisting drillers and other crew members during operations. Roustabouts also help connect pipes, maintain tools, and perform minor repairs under supervision. They monitor for leaks, rust, or damage in pipelines and machinery, reporting any issues to supervisors. Safety is a major part of the job — roustabouts must follow all safety protocols, wear protective gear, and participate in regular safety drills and training sessions. Physical fitness and teamwork are essential, as the work involves heavy lifting, climbing, and exposure to challenging weather conditions. Overall, the roustabout role builds strong mechanical and operational experience, offering a solid foundation for promotion to higher-level positions such as floorhand, derrickman, or driller in the oil and gas field. It's a demanding but rewarding job that develops essential technical and safety skills.	UPES certification IWCF Certification
