Can be really boring, a nice mix of boring and torture, or straight up torture lol. The companies have gotten pretty strict on not getting frostbite and some enforce it. If your cold, say something and go warm up. Its not like a drilling rig where you get some wind break. When your rigging in your in a Genie basket, freezing your balls off. And feet. I recommend getting a rubber mat to stand on in the genie basket, makes a world of difference. Honestly, coil is a great gig. After rigging in, make sure all the tools are cleaned up nice and put away where they belong. When your stabbing on the well, running in, pulling, and or pumping thru the coil, NEVER stand under the Coil running up to the Injector. If that shit parts, which it does, it will drop and stab into the ground after whipping around. Avoid 30 degrees both ways infront if the coil unit/reel trailer also when pumping at high pressure, especially with nitrified fluid. As it will whip in that area. Avoid putting yourself infront of the rotating joint in the center of the drum as if it goes, it will go that way.	Microsoft
