I have 1.5 years of professional experience as an Oil and Gas Analyst at Evalueserve, where I have developed strong analytical and domain expertise across the energy value chain. My role has involved data analysis, market insights, and supporting strategic decision-making for upstream and midstream operations. In addition, I bring hands-on upstream experience through a 6-month internship focused on production enhancement and workover operations. I have worked with advanced techniques such as polymer gel technology for water shut-off, as well as hydraulic fracturing and matrix acidizing to improve well productivity. I am proficient in analyzing field data and diagnosing well performance issues using tools like Hall plots and Chan's plots, enabling effective identification of reservoir and operational challenges. Beyond upstream, I have also gained exposure to midstream operations, particularly in gas pipeline stations, where I understood operational management practices and system efficiency considerations. This combination of analytical expertise and practical field exposure has equipped me with a well-rounded understanding of oil and gas operations, allowing me to contribute effectively to both technical and business-oriented projects.
